Gossip About the Massing of Naval Vessels at Rio-News Awaited

The policy of the administration in the Brazilian affair is a well-kept secret. It FOR RENT (Flats). is known in a general way that it is a policy of strict neutrality and non-interference, and it is a patriotic assumption that the administration will not counte- FOR RENT (Room nance or permit European interference in the pending struggle in the interest of either party. There have been no official utterances on the subject, and most of the so-called instructions which have been printed are mainly conjectural. The alleged instructions embody a course of action that many persons believe to be for the best interests of the United States, and may in their general character be borne out by the progress of events. The almost daily use of the cable between Rio and Washington during the past ten days, and the long and detailed character of the messages from Capt. Picking, commanding the naval fleet at Rio, coupled with the fact that the President is daily in conference with Secretaries Gresham and Herbert in regard to the condition of affairs in Brazil, is generally regarded as indicative of the near approach of a crisis in the situation. The press dis-patches from Brazil give no indications of any recent important changes in the con-flict that would appear to justify the ex-tensive official use of the cable during the past week, so the conclusion is aimost irresistible that the communications to and from Capt. Picking relate more especially to a future plan of action on the part of the American government, the first signs of which will probably appear soon after the arrival at Rio of Admiral Benham on the flagship San Francisco, an event that may be looked for today or tomorrow. Ad-miral Benham will at once relieve Capt. Picking of command of the fieet, and the policy of the administration will be carried out under his personal supervision. Strict Neutrality.

A long cipher message was sent to Capt. Picking Saturday evening, in which it is said the President impressed on him the importance of observing strict neutrality in all of his actions with the contending parties in the Brazilian revolution and of keeping aloof from any alliances with other foreign naval and diplomatic representatives at Rio.

tives at Rio.

The principal question before the President and his cabinet lately is said to relate to the powers of this country in bringing about a settlement of the Brazilian troubles. It was the unanimous opinion of the officials, so it is said, that the proper policy to be followed would not permit the United States to engage in any movement looking to the forcing of an ending of the rebellion. The Monroe doctrine prevented interference on the part of this country, just as it prohibited foreign intervention in the premises. That an insurrection of serious proportions which affected injuriously rious proportions which affected injuriously the commerce of the United States existed in Brazil was unfortunate, but that fact did in Brazil was unfortunate, but that fact did not warrant this country to take steps which would force a settlement of existing difficulties, for by doing so action which would not be tolerated on the part of a foreign power would be necessary. It would not do for this country to insist upon one rule for foreigners and follow another it-self.

No Immediate Change.

Although the proposed course of action may be manifested at Rio this week there ing will be done by Admiral Benham until and is not due at the Brazilian capital One of the incidents of the journey from the platform to the pavement was the atbe amply able to protect all its interests. The other vessels at Rio are the Charleston, Newark and Detroit, and their reinforcement is undoubtedly due to the purpose of the administration to take some COLLIDED IN A FOG.

More War Ships for Brasil.

A cable message has been received by an American house engaged in the manufacture of ordnance material advising that the Brazilian war ships, the iron-clad Riachuelo and the cruiser Benjamin Constant, are to an umber of cities, having, it is claimed, west and embarked in business as a spiritudistic medium. He is charged with having obtained money by fraudulent methods in a number of cities, having, it is claimed, we will be a manufacture of cities, having, it is claimed, we will be a manufacture of cities, having, it is claimed, we will be a manufacture of cities, having, it is claimed, we will be a manufacture of cities, having, it is claimed. leave Toulon at once for Brazil. This is victimized many people in the name of the situation in Brazil, as in the event of these vessels arriving before the engagement it would practically insure the success of Pelxoto in a sea fight, and if, on the ment it would practically insure the suc-cess of Pelxoto in a sea fight, and if, on the other hand, Mello were successful in a sea fight with the present squadron the Ria-chuelo and Benjamin Constant would be more formidable enemies than the fleet now in Brazilian waters. Several days ago a correspondent cabled from Rio that Peixoto had ordered the vessels to leave for Brazil and the cable received Saturday would tend to confirm that information.

To the Editor of The Evening Star:

Although the women who met at Detroit have attracted favorable comment by apparentiv blaming their own sex for financial stringency, does it not seem almost like piling Ossa upon Pelion to put another burden upon the back of one who unfortunately is not called the breadwinner?

Certainly every woman will be gratified to have domestic economy more plainly taught in the schools, where her girls may learn to make wholesome, palatable food and acquire a taste for household pursuits much more readily when presented in the form of science than when "mother" attempts to instill it into their minds at home. In this way the mother has her duties lightened; but to really put the responsibility of retrenchment in living expenses on woman alone is hardly fair. While it is woman alone is hardly fair. While it is true that careful cooking can make cheaper meat palatable, yet the real saving must be in learning to eat plainer food. In other words, if the girls are taught to prepare plain, substantial food, such as Americans of today do not use, the boys must be taught to eat it. Wives and mothers will eagerly listen to suggestions that may help them in their deliv task of making much out of lit. their daily task of making much out of lit-tle, but they often sadly feel that they are only saving at the spigot while the bunghole is not under their supervision; while they skimp in the kitchen until they feel their very souls contract, only cents are saved, while dollars are squandered elsewhere. Women are proverbially stingy and small-minded, but it might not be so if the spirit-

A SO CALLED MEDIUM

Great Excitement at a Spiritualists' Gathering Last Night.

Proceedings in the Police Court Today-Released on Bail to Appear Tomorrow.

Patrick Jules Wallace, an alleged spirstation on the charge of being a suspicious character. At the time of the arrest, Wallace was giving manifestations of "tests" before the Washington Society of Seekers After Spiritual Truth, at Typographical Temple. While the so-called tests were in course of operation, a young man arose insulted him at a previous meeting. Mr. Fairchild, president of the society, told the young man to put his grievance in writing and it would be considered by the society. The spiritualists objected to any interruption of their meeting. At this junc ture Detective Rhodes came to the front. and there was considerable confusion, many of the audience showing a disposition to interfere. Wallace was taken to police headquarters where he gave his name as Patrick Jules born in Ireland, and a spiritualistic medium by occupation. On his person was found a purse containing $1.45 in change and three pawn tickets for jewelry deposited at Fulton's loan office, a gold watch and from a long trip on the road with a variety company. He says Anson will place him at first base on the Chicago team this season. "Kel" further says he is not drinking a drop, and that he will begin training about February 15.

Attorney Fleming appeared for the prisoner, and objected to a continuance of the case, stating that Wallace was ready for trial, and anxious that the case be at once heard. He claimed that his client had been a created under glecumstances not at all. heard. He claimed that his client had been arrested under circumstances not at all creditable to the police department, and had been made the subject of false and sensational newspaper reports. The bonds asked for exceeded the penalty, $200 bonds, which could be inflicted in case of conviction, and he asked that they be reduced.

Judge Kimball granted the continuance requested, and placed the bond at $200, which was subsequently furnished.
